Leave No Trace — of Yourself

Any Meeting

After a Hard Campout

Summer Camp

Leave No Trace tells us to pack out what we pack in, to leave a campsite like we were never there. But I want you to think about that idea a little differently tonight: what trace are you leaving on the people around you? On your patrol? You can't leave no trace there — you're going to leave a mark on everyone you spend time with. The only question is whether it's a good one.
