Thank the Person Who Drove

Any Meeting

After a Hard Campout

Someone's parent drove an hour each way today so this troop could go camping. They didn't hike with us, didn't cook with us, probably sat in a camp chair most of the weekend reading a book. But none of this happens without people like that quietly making it possible. Before we close tonight, I want every scout to think of one person who made this week possible for you — and actually tell them thank you before you go to bed.
